

Call for Participation

We invite you to join us in 13th International Conference on Cybernetics & Informatics (CYBI 2026).

This conference serves as a premier forum for presenting cutting edge advances and research results in cybernetics, systems science, artificial intelligence, robotics, and informatics. The conference focuses on understanding, modeling, and optimizing the behavior, structure, and interaction of complex systems—ranging from engineered and biological systems to socio technical and cyber physical environments. CYBI 2026 brings together leading researchers, engineers, practitioners, and innovators from around the world to exchange knowledge, explore emerging trends, and foster interdisciplinary collaboration. The conference aims to provide a dynamic platform for discussing new theories, methodologies, technologies, and applications that are shaping the future of intelligent systems and cybernetic design. By highlighting emerging research directions that require deeper attention and broader exposure, CYBI 2026 seeks to encourage impactful contributions that advance the field and strengthen the global research community..

Highlights of CYBI 2026 includes:

- 13th International Conference on Signal and Image Processing (SIGL 2026)
